

DEFINING BRITISH LUXURY

Famous for theatre, shopping, dining and the arts, with beautiful parks and a rich, varied history, London is a place where you can experience the best of everything. Mayfair is in the heart of London and Brown's Hotel is in the heart of Mayfair. With Bond Street and the open spaces of Green Park a stone's throw away and St James's equally as close, Brown's is one of the most prestigious addresses in the city. It has hosted many distinguished guests since it opened as London's first ever hotel in 1837, including President Roosevelt as well as Rudyard Kipling and Agatha Christie, who wrote novels at the hotel.

Today, the hotel personifies the refined sophistication of modern British luxury. Each room and suite is individually decorated and many feature antiques and artworks, creating a contemporary elegance and glamorous air. The Donovan Bar and HIX at The Albemarle restaurant celebrate art and cuisine, making Brown's the place to be seen. Brown's also offers award-winning afternoon tea for those seeking a quintessential English experience.
